Early Music Editions

Our early music editions range from c.1550 to c.1820. Solo works are principally for strings, while ensembles are for a variety of instruments - viols, violins, recorders, flutes, etc. There are works for voice(s) with strings or other instruments; all editions are supplied with convenient sets of performing parts. The music falls into three main categories:

- 1) Scholarly editions by specialist editors with detailed commentary and editorial notes.
- 2) Teaching and study books (mainly for viols or strings), also translations of treatises.
- 3) Arrangements or reconstructions of music from the 16th 18th centuries, to provide performable editions.

MUSIC FOR STRINGS

The Corda Music Series for Strings includes chamber music with particular emphasis on pieces which feature the Viola under the general editorship of John White. Additionally, there are ensemble pieces designed for teaching purposes, and a cross-reference to several suitable items from our early music catalogue.
